Pérennité – Lien périmé

Une étude de 2021 sur les liens externes contenus dans les articles du New York Times publiés entre 1996 et 2019 a établi à environ 15 ans la demi-vie de ces hyperliens (sans variation importante entre les thèmes), mais elle a noté que 13 % des liens qui fonctionnaient ne pointaient plus vers le contenu original – un phénomène baptisé la dérive de contenu.

Fardeau administratif pour les chercheurs

Une étude américaine menée en 2012, et auparavant en 2005, a démontré que les chercheurs principaux d'études financées par le gouvernement fédéral consacraient en moyenne 42 % de leur temps à des tâches administratives connexes.

The screenshot shows the University of Victoria Libraries website page for ORCID. The header includes the University of Victoria logo and 'Libraries' text, a 'Select Language' dropdown menu, and an 'Ask us' button. The breadcrumb trail is 'Libraries / LibGuides / ORCID (Unique Personal Identifier) / What is ORCID?'. The main title is 'ORCID (Unique Personal Identifier)' with a search box for the guide. The introductory text states: 'ORCID is a non-profit organization that provides scholars and students with unique, persistent identifier so that your professional activities can be recorded, shared, and moved no matter where you go in your professional life...'. A left sidebar contains a menu with items: 'What is ORCID?', 'Sign up for ORCID', 'Add Your Education', 'Add Your Employment History', 'Add Your Grants', 'Add Your Publications', 'Privacy Settings', 'ORCID Video Tutorials', 'UVic & ORCID', 'ORCID FAQ', 'Download Presentation (slides)', and 'Arrange Workshop/Personal'. The main content area has a 'What is ORCID?' section with the ORCID logo and tagline 'Connecting Research and Researchers'. The text explains that ORCID (Open Researcher and Contributor ID) is a powerful tool for recording, sharing, and moving scholarly information. It also includes a 'Why Use ORCID?' section with a list of benefits: getting credit for all scholarly work and being able to update your name.

What is ORCID?

ORCID (Open Researcher and Contributor ID) is a powerful tool that allows researchers to record, share, and move their scholarly information. Imagine having a CV that follows you from institution to institution or if you change your name. ORCID assigns you a unique identifier so that you can get credit (no matter where you go, no matter what you are called) for your scholarly work.

ORCID, a non-profit organization, "is part of the wider digital infrastructure needed for researchers to share information on a global scale. We enable transparent and trustworthy connections between researchers, their contributions, and affiliations by providing an identifier for individuals to use with their name as they engage in research, scholarship, and innovation activities" (Our Mission).

Why Use ORCID?

When you sign up for an ORCID, you will be given a 16-digit unique identifier, which will allow you to:

- Get credit for ALL of your scholarly work: articles, grants, education, and awards.
- Be who you are: If you've changed your name, you can associate your new name with your scholarly work under a different
