Citation Guide

Please adhere to the following guidelines when citing materials from the Canadiana Collection.

1. Cite Canadiana as the source

If you use or reproduce materials from the Canadiana Collection in any format, cite Canadiana as the source of the material. Please also include the persistent URL for the item in your citation. Persistent URLs are available at the bottom of each document record. See below for a list of citation examples.

In cases of discrepancies between the item and its metadata, use the information on the item itself. Please let us know if you find errors in the metadata and we'll make corrections.

2. Send a copy of your work to CRKN

We also would love to hear from you regarding your use of the Canadiana collection. This can help us continue to develop the collection in ways that help serve your needs and interests.

Upon completing publicly available works (e.g. publications, dissertations, theses, papers, conference proceedings, creative works, news items, documentaries etc.) that make use of materials from the Canadiana Collection, please send a copy or a link to your work to CRKN.
